

ABSTRACT

This invention relates to using molecular and evolutionary techniques to identify polynucleotide and polypeptide sequences corresponding to commercially or aesthetically relevant traits in domesticated plants and animals, specifically, a method to detect evolutionary bottleneck sequences.